

Joe Hedworth

Call 2002

EXPERTISE

Joe has built a criminal practice, predominantly defending, and has appeared in a wide spectrum of cases which have included serious violence; public disorder; sexual offences ranging from voyeurism to historic familial rape; and multi-handed drug, robbery and fraud conspiracies. He appears at the Crown Court daily and regularly appears at the Court of Appeal and the Administrative Court.

Joe is extremely user friendly and over the last decade has built strong and lasting relationships with many of the leading criminal defence solicitors in the North East. Long before the advent of the digital system, Joe provided prompt and succinct written electronic advice.

Joe is well acquainted with the numerous Advocates' Graduated Fee Schemes and has an in-depth understanding of the Legal Aid Agency's Criminal Bills assessment and procedures. He has successfully challenged numerous refusals of the Legal Aid Agency to correctly determine criminal bills and has secured hundreds of thousands of pounds on behalf of criminal defence solicitors. Historically, he has represented prisoners, many of whom were serving life sentences, at Parole Board hearings before circuit judges and adjudications before district judges.

Joe receives instructions to represent parents in private family law proceedings including residence and contact issues.

R v Paul Robert Goldsborough [2015] EWCA Crim 1278

R v Paul Robert Goldsborough [2015] EWCA Crim 1278

Successfully challenged crown court ruling and obtained clarification of the law in favour of the Appellant. The appellant, who had been in possession of an air pistol for many years, should not have been convicted of possessing a prohibited air weapon contrary to the Firearms Act 1968 s.5(1)(af). The effect of the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s.39(4) was to allow those in possession of air weapons of the relevant description to continue to hold them provided they had a firearms certificate. This decision has resulted in subsequent successful appeals from other Appellants who had been wrongly convicted and subjected to a statutory minimum sentence of 5 years imprisonment.

R v David Wallage (Newcastle upon Tyne Crown Court)

R v David Wallage (Newcastle upon Tyne Crown Court)

Successfully defended the 'right hand man' of the 'main man' in a multi- handed class A drugs conspiracy.
